Weather, Seasons and Wildlife

The Wildlife

The Serengeti National Park encompasses 1.5 million hectares of incredible landscape. It is one of the oldest and most scientifically significant ecosystems on earth with the most densely populated wildlife areas where you can expect epic sightings year round.

The Weather

NOV - DEC Short Rains	MARCH - APR Long Rains	JAN - FEB & MAY - OCT Dry Seasons
With quick downpours and ample sunshine in between, this is a great time for photographic safaris in a green savannah.	During this period, the camp usually closes for annual maintenance for 4-6 weeks. Please confirm with our reservations team.	Expect dry savannah, warm days and nights with rare sprinkles of rain making for epic sightings at watering holes.

MONTHLY AVERAGE TEMPERATURES

Health

Although our camp is at high altitude and malaria is less common than elsewhere in the Serengeti National Park, it is best to consult with your doctor about taking Malaria pills before travel, especially during and after the wet seasons as a precautionary measure that the government recommends.

This area also tends to have tsetse flies, so best avoid wearing high-contrast colors like black and blue, which tend to attract them. Opt for neutral, light shades to stay more comfortable outdoors.

A Yellow Fever inoculation & certificate may be required when travelling to Tanzania depending on your country of origin and other countries being visited during your travels. We recommend you consult a medical professional prior to traveling to confirm vaccination requirements.
